Estimated Sources for Remaining Entries

To reach 1,700+ entries, consider:

High-Potential Sources

- Wikipedia Star Fort Lists (~200-300 entries)
 - List of star forts by country
 - UNESCO World Heritage fortifications
- Academic Databases (~300-400 entries)
 - Fortress Study Group publications
 - Archaeological surveys

3. Regional Historical Societies (~200-300 entries)

- European Castle/Fort associations
- Colonial era documentation

4. Military History Archives (~200-300 entries)

- National Archives (various countries)
- Military museum records

5. Satellite/GIS Surveys (~100-200 entries)

- OpenStreetMap fortification tags
- Google Earth historical imagery analysis

Underrepresented Regions to Target

- Eastern Europe (Poland, Czech Republic, Hungary)
- Middle East (Turkey, Iran)
- Central Asia (Uzbekistan, Afghanistan)
- Southeast Asia (Vietnam, Thailand, Philippines)
- South America (Argentina, Peru, Colombia)

Recommendations

Short-term (Next 500 entries)

1. Process additional AI-generated compilations
2. Scrape Wikipedia star fort category pages
3. Integrate OpenStreetMap fortification data

Medium-term (500-1000 entries)

1. Contact fortress study organizations
2. Access academic archaeology databases
3. Process colonial administration records

Long-term (1000+ entries)

1. Commission satellite imagery analysis
2. Crowdsourcing from enthusiast communities
3. Partner with museum networks

Quality Targets

As database grows, maintain:

- ≥95% valid coordinates
- ≥90% named entries
- ≥80% with construction dates
- ≥70% with country data
